

MONARCH The LION Says

or Other Cereals

Lethbridge Experimental Station
Weekly Letter.

The question is frequently asked "Is it advisable to grow flax in combination with other grain rather than by itself?" There are advantages and disadvantages to the system of combination cropping, and these should be taken into account when the use of it is being considered. The advantages of combination cropping are: 1. It is easier to cut flax when it is grown in a mixture with other grain than when it is grown alone. 2. Flax in combination with other grain will fight weeds much

The chief disadvantages are: 1. Flax should be sown fairly shallowly and under normal conditions the seedlings are liable to be killed by frost. 2. Flax is a very susceptible crop to insect and grasshopper damage. 3. A crop of wheat and flax mixed is more difficult to market, and it is practically essential to separate it. 4. The grade of flax is frequently lowered on account of broken wheat particles. Manufacturers of linseed oil object to these as they reduce the percentage of oil.

Where there is not too much risk of producing a satisfactory crop of flax by seeding it alone, it is preferable to sow it alone.

A mixture of wheat and flax is likely to prove successful only in the parts of the province where a favourable moisture supply is usually received. Experiments have been conducted at the Lethbridge Experimental Station on irrigated land over a period of five years in seeding wheat and flax in different combinations. From results obtained a mixture of half a bushel of wheat and of a bush of fax per acre, appears to be a satisfactory combination.

When deciding to grow wheat and fax in combination the time of sowing of the varieties used is important. Marquis wheat and Blount are the best for this purpose, but can, therefore, be sown together, but if an earlier variety such as Red 203 or Thatcher is chosen, then an earlier variety of fax, such as the one mentioned above, must be used.

From observations made at the Experimental Station, it appears more profitable to seed fax alone than in combination.

It is not advisable to need fax in combination with oats or barley, as the rapid growth of these crops and the heavy seedling of fax will crowd the fax and depress the yield. It also requires seedling the fax and oats or barley separately, in order to get the best results.

The harvesting of fax when grown alone is much less difficult than

LATE SEEDING

Exceptionally heavy snowfalls for this time of year have been experienced throughout Alberta over the past week-end. This spring has been exceptionally cold and snowy, and seeding is certain to be delayed. Normally 80 per cent of the wheat is seeded by May 10th.

A study of the progress of grain seeding over the years provides no definite conclusion as to the effect of earliness or lateness on the grain production. Alberta's 1940 wheat crop was a record breaker (180,700,000 bushels), yet in that year only 1 per cent of the seeding was completed by April 30th, and 60 per cent of the seeding was completed on May 18th. In 1937, 42 per cent of the seeding was completed on April 30th, and the crop that year was only 75,700,000 bushels. In 1947, 8 per cent of the seeding in Alberta was completed on April 30th, and the wheat outturn was 102

What seems to be more important than the progress of seeding is the amount and timeliness of rainfall during the season, and the length of the frost-free period.

Patient: "Yeah, get me my hat and coat."

Her husband, a German scientist, killed in the last days of the war, allegedly brought the bottles with him from Norway and landed them in the garden of his home in Germany. Mr. Jackson, Dominion meteorologist stationed at Edmonton, informed his hearers on Monday of this week that they were living through the making of history. He foretold, that in years to come the weather of April, 1948, will be referred to by future scientists as a remarkable instance of how, by a reversal of air currents, Siberia became a banana belt for Canada shivered in polar bear temperatures. It was all very interesting; but with feed and coal running out, most of the people might be willing to swap one of their shivers for a good old fashioned hot storm. "BLOODLESS VIOLET"

The tragedies of Czechoslovakia and Poland chalk up two more battles in the ideological war. While strategists try to chalk this up as the "bloodless victory" abroad, the ordinary man can keep eyes upon the "bloodless victories" which, despite our "purges", still continue here at home.

Ideological fist clutched about a regime that has, under cover of numerous democratic-sounding rhetoric, work first to undermine foundations—the family, the church, the moral law, unity at home and in Europe. Western propaganda is sent to Europe, our friendship with other nations and races, teamwork in industry, agreement to labor union. Young people are encouraged to more at morality, religion and their parents. Workers are encouraged to slacken production, respect the law, and to elect the wrong men to key union positions.

If these fist clutched cannot capture the labor unions or farmers' Associations, they bring them into disrepute and impotence through unofficial strikes and slowdowns. Propaganda is spread to split all opposition into small groups both in Europe and national politics. Needless and futile battles are fought on tedious issues with real issues never faced. How can democracy flourish?

The battle obviously must be fought at each point of materialistic attack. Moral standards must be maintained, religion upheld with new vitality, and the family must be held back in last ground. There are foundations of freedom. Labor unions can regenerate key positions they have lost. Sound men can be elected, unofficial strikes and moral elections can be stopped, through the renewal of a united action of all these. The battle is true of our political decisions.

Win these battles—lose the war.

51 PERSONS KILLED IN CAR ACCIDENTS

Motor accidents took 51 lives in this province last year, according to information received from the provincial coroner's office by the Alberta Motor Association. In the previous year, the death toll was 47.

The number of deaths emphasizes the need of greater care being exercised by motorists, in the opinion of officials of the A.M.A.

Many of the fatal accidents were at level railway crossings, while others were highway crashes due to glare lights or other causes.

Demerency does depend on how you elect to rule but on how you elect to live.

Handling money costs money

It costs you more to live these days. And it costs your bank more to provide efficient banking service.
